LAUNCH DRIVE TO HALT STREAM POLLUTION

HOPE TO ELIMINATE DISPOSAL OF WASTE IN WATERS OF OHIO

Dry Season, Minimum
Flow, Blamed For Many Complaints

Columbus, July 15.—Spurred by the growth and insistence of complaints of stream pollution, officials of the state health department today are engaged in a vigorous campaign to eliminate the disposal of sewage and industrial wastes in Ohio streams.

The frequency of protests against stream pollution is attributed by department officials to the long, dry season, with resulting minimum flow of streams—the lowest ever known, which has intensified conditions caused by delivery of wastes to Ohio water courses.

Dr. John E. Monger, state health director, accompanied by W. H. Ditto, chief engineer of the department, are now studying waste reduction plants in eastern states, with the view of incorporating all known modern methods of prevention of stream pollution into the plans of Ohio to purify its water supply. Under new legislation recently become effective, the health department is given broad powers to regulate stream pollution, both from municipal sewage and industrial waste sources, James C. Bauman, assistant director of health explained today.

Municipalities and industries by this legislation have been warned he said, that the streams are the property of the people and must not be polluted.

The department is now engaged in a statewide campaign to cut down present sources of pollution and to check new sources. Thus far one of the biggest steps forward, it was said, was the elimination of the discharge of phenol or crude carbolic acid, into the Cuyahoga river from steel plant coke manufacturers and the banding together of coke producers in the Ohio river valley to end the discharge of phenol into the Ohio river and its tributaries. Phenol, while not discharged into the streams in quantity sufficient to cause danger to health, has the faculty, in combination with chlorine, which is used in most city water filtration plants, of imparting an offensive odor to drinking water.

It was explained, thus driving consumers to unregulated private sources of water supply with the consequent danger either of contamination or of reduction in use of drinking water, which is held to be inimical to public health.

Co-operation also has been effected with associations of beet sugar manufacturers in Toledo and vicinity and with paper manufacturers along the great Miami Valley, by which assurance has been given that the most effective methods will be devised through research of eliminating stream pollution.

Canners throughout the state also are aiding in the campaign which will later be carried to the producers and distributors of milk and to milk and ice cream manufacturers.

Steel manufacturers also are to be asked to end the disposal of acid wastes into the streams. The problem is being tackled by the department as a state wide public health measure, a stream pollution survey, already having been made of 72 of the 88 counties in the state.

Would Put Bible Into Constitution

Threatening to bar evolution by amending the Constitution of the United States, William Jennings Bryan made his arrival at Dayton, Tenn., auspicious. He was met by a large delegation at the railway station, attended two dinners, speaking at both, and with his trick hat posed for photographers.

DISCOVER IDENTITY OF MURDERED WOMAN AND NAME OF SLAYER

Ohio River Corpse Was Augusta, Ky., Wife and Mother—Seek Man

Batavia, O., July 15.—A warrant charging first degree murder was in the hands of Sheriff Crosswell today, following identification of the body of the woman, found in the Ohio river near Utopia, as that of Mrs. Maude Turney, 28, Augusta, Ky. The warrant names Jack Linnville also of Augusta, as the alleged murderer.

Identification was made by means of a photograph sent by a cousin of the victim.

Hundreds have sought to identify the nude body, found in the river as that of a missing relative. The body was weighed down with auto chains. Mrs. Turney disappeared from Augusta about five months ago, leaving four children. At the same time, Linnville a widower, also left.

WILL MAKE U. S. ARID AS DEATH VALLEY

Washington, July 15.—Prohibition experts went to work today to complete re-organization of a system aimed at making the United States as arid as the death valley.

Consideration of appointment of prohibition administrators took up the major portion of a conference attended by General L. C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, Commissioner of Internal Revenue D. H. Blair, Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes and others.

Dressed in the habiliments of service, the new blue policeman's uniform, decorated with the gold badge No. 1 and its shiny brass buttons, Charles Simms, Patrolman No. 1 of the Xenia Police Department was laid to rest in Cherry Grove Cemetery Tuesday afternoon.

Impressive funeral rites marked the close of a fifteen-year public career as a member of the police department, which came to an untimely end last Friday when the officer was slain while attempting to make an arrest. Out of respect to his memory, Xenians paid tribute by the hundreds to the fallen officer at the church while hundreds lined the streets through which the funeral cortege passed.

More than 3,000 people, white and colored, visited the Third Baptist Church while the body lay in state from 10 o'clock Tuesday morning until the hour of service at 1 o'clock. During the church rites, the edifice was thronged with an overflowing crowd, many waiting in the street until the close of the obsequies in order to pass the casket before it was closed for the last time.

Among this throng were city and county officials. City Hall offices were closed down during the funeral hour, while brother officers and city officials paid their last tribute to the officer. A desk man at Police headquarters was in charge of the station while the rest of the building was deserted.

Services at the church were in charge of the fallen officer's pastor,

DEMPSEY EXPECTED TO WIN YES AND NO CHAMPIONSHIP ON RETURN HOME

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, July 15.—The yes and no championship of the world will be decided again today when Jack Dempsey takes on a bevy of inquiring reporters at catch weights in the lower bay as the Homeric steams into port.

The meeting will occur on the quarter deck, so called because no quarter will be given and plenty asked.

The inquiring reporters plan to back Dempsey against a bulkhead and with out further ado, split an infinitive right over his head. They expect to win in a punch. But reports from the champion's camp seemed to have been misleading. As a result of a last minute workout, the writer can vouch for the fact that Dempsey is in his

LEE RESISTS ALL EFFORTS TO FORCE GUILT ADMISSION

Questioning of Frank Lee alias Robert Lee, colored, held in the County Jail for the alleged slaying of Patrolman Charles Simms, has proved futile so far.

Authorities have almost abandoned efforts to gain an admission of guilt from the suspect and await the trial when it is believed Lee will be crushed in a net of circumstantial evidence of guilt that denials will not serve to break down.

Sitting in his cell, Lee neither presents an appearance of abject terror nor an overly confident attitude, but remains rather indifferent and complacent.

Developments in the case will be brought to a head this week with the county coroner's inquest into the Xenia policeman's death scheduled to be held Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Court House and the special session of the grand jury called for Thursday morning.

Prosecuting Attorney J. Carl Marshall will ask the grand jury to indict Lee on a charge of first degree murder.

The Homeric is not scheduled to dock until late today and by the time the Dempseys get settled here, some of the agitation will be stilled. A meeting with Tex Rickard will follow, after which the heavyweight vocalist may be expected to hie him to California and dig in for the winter.

The affirmative also would follow any inquiries about proposed no decision contests with Bartley Madden and Martin Burke in the middle weight fall.

If Dempsey fights at all this year it will be with pushovers, like Burke and Madden, where the returns will be comparatively large and the risk comparatively little. Then, if the Wills proposition is forced to a showdown, he can quickly make his peace with the local commission just as Mickey Walker did when he wanted to fight Greb.

Although the service began at 1 o'clock, it was almost 4 when the funeral cortege passed through streets lined with people on its journey to the cemetery. A color guard of John Ross Post, American Legion, headed the procession, followed by uniformed policemen, brother officers of the dead patrolman, headed by Chief of Police M. E. Graham, for whom Patrolman Simms held unswerving devotion and loyalty.

The uniformed military band of Anthony Bailey Post, American Legion, Springfield, followed in the line of march, playing funeral airs. Next in line were members of Damon Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of which he was a member and following was the hearse. Mourners followed in twenty-six automobiles. Under different circumstances Patrolman Simms would have directed the traffic at Main and Detroit Streets during the passage of the cortege.

old time form. I was in receipt of the following message from Dempsey, which speaks for itself:

"Plans indefinite until after arriving. Regards.

"Jack."

This clearly indicates that our Mr. Dempsey still is able to run around a given point, ie, and to wit, Harry Wills, with all the technique of a carousal. Barring accidents he will be in undisputed possession of his yes and no title by nightfall. But the challengers plan to die hard. They expect to land right on the button with the first inquiry:

"Are you going to placate the boxing commission by signing to meet Wills this year or next?"

Business of covering up, with "Kearns is my manager; I do the fighting."

Pressed to rectify another bedtime story, the champion will re-affirm his statement that he stands ready to meet anyone anytime.

The round goes to Dempsey on points.

Then the challengers rally in the second and lead with these:

"Will you fight before your contract with Kearns runs out? Have you a moving picture contract that prevents you from fighting this year?"

If Dempsey counters have any element of sincerity he probably would answer no to the first question and yes to the second.

The affirmative also would follow any inquiries about proposed no decision contests with Bartley Madden and Martin Burke in the middle weight fall.

If Dempsey fights at all this year it will be with pushovers, like Burke and Madden, where the returns will be comparatively large and the risk comparatively little. AMERICA INVITED TO JOIN GERMANY IN AIR TRIP TO NORTH POLE

Propose Two Dirigibles Fly
Together In Joint Expedition

Berlin, July 15.—America today was asked to join Germany in a dirigible expedition to the North Pole, each country to fly its own giant airship, but with the two keeping in constant touch and assisting and supplementing each other.

The invitation was extended by Dr. Hugo Eckener, pilot in its trans-Atlantic delivery of the naval dirigible Los Angeles.

"I cannot imagine a greater guarantee of the success and safety of this epoch making Arctic exploration with airships than in your country and mine, joining hands in the same spirit of enthusiasm that marked the Los Angeles trans-Atlantic flight on the part of the two peoples on both sides of the ocean," Dr. Eckener said in an interview with International News Service.

"If each country starts building an Arctic Zeppelin in the immediate future we can start together next spring," the famous dirigible designer and pilot continued.

"Leaving simultaneously and meeting in the Arctic, we can proceed with comradely, mutual assistance."

"I think the ultimate result will be the establishment of a regular air traffic from Spitzbergen via the north pole to Alaska and back. I visualize the summer tourists of both hemispheres in some future year, spending their vacations in taking cross Arctic airship trips. I believe the expedition would result also in invaluable study of the unexplored regions between Alaska and the pole."

"No two countries are more eminently fitted for this enterprise than the home of the Zeppelins and America which has shown such wonderful aptness in handling big dirigibles and which has already done so much in Arctic exploration."

Dr. Eckener said there should be two bases for the joint expedition, one in Alaska, established by America and another in Spitzbergen, established by Germany. Both must have radio stations, all needed supplies and provisions for emergency landings.

In answer to a question as to the size of the polar dirigibles, Dr. Eckener said:

"If, as I believe, America will fill the gas bag with helium, it should be between 120,000 and 130,000 cubic meters capacity, while the German vessel, filled with hydrogen should be between 100,000 and 110,000 cubic meters in size."

He would leave the details of construction and co-operation to those in charge of the trip.

YOUTH SWINGS FROM ELECTRIC CABLE AS RESCUER RISKS LIFE

Boy Seriously Burned After Climbing Tower On a
Dare

Cleveland, O., July 15.—Nicholas Pelich, thirteen years old, today owes his life primarily to the fact that his shoes had rubber heels and secondly to the men who risked death to climb a 125 foot tower carrying high power electric wires over the Cuyahoga river.

The boy had climbed the tower on a dare. There, high above the street below, he clung precariously to a cable carrying 60,000 volts. Spectators gasped. Volunteers essayed a rescue as sparks flew from the lad's body. Finally a man reached the boy who was grimly holding on. A rope was fastened about his shoulders and he was lowered carefully down the tower ladder.

Police took the boy to city hospital. His left hand, an examination revealed, was burned so badly that amputation probably will be necessary and his right arm was badly burned. The boy, conscious as physicians made their examination, will have a grim fight for his life but may recover, it was said.

JAPAN APPROVES CHINESE POLICY

NEW LAW PROVIDES BALANCED BUDGET SYSTEM FOR STATE

The recently enacted Vorys law, providing for a balanced budget system for all taxing districts in counties and political subdivisions of the State, establishing a uniform fiscal year for the state and its political units and making certain administrative adjustments by enacting new sections, is the subject of casual comment in city and county circles.

The beginning of the fiscal year is changed from September 1 to January 1, and is applicable to charter cities such as Xenia as well as other political subdivisions and taxing districts.

The fiscal year change in the law is effective in 1928 for the state and in 1926 for the counties.

The law provides that "all public bodies authorized by law to levy taxes shall adopt a budget for the next succeeding year on or before July 15 in each year; such budget shall include detailed estimates of all balances that will be available at the beginning of the said fiscal year for the purposes of such year and all revenues to be received for the year, including all general and special taxes, fees, costs, percentages, penalties, allowances, perquisites and all other types of revenue also estimates of all expenditures or charges in or for the purposes of such fiscal year to be paid or met from the said revenues and balances."

Under the law, date for filing budgets is set at July 20 instead of June as heretofore, with any extension of time as may be prescribed by the state tax commission.

ADMISSIBILITY OF TESTIMONY WILL BE BONE OF CONTENTION

Prosecution Wants To Examine Scientist Witnesses
Called By Defense

Court House, Dayton, July 15.—The Scopes trial proached a new crisis today the pending clash between the forces of religion and science over the admissibility of testimony on the relation of evolution to the divine origin of man.

A score of nationally prominent scientists have been summoned by counsel for the defense, Thomas Scopes, the youthful defendant for the purpose of proving that evolution does not conflict with the Bible.

These master minds of science will be the defense's chief of acquitting Scopes but presence has met with bitter position from the state.

With the prosecution opposed placing the scientists on the witness stand, a protracted legal battle expected. The state, in earlier noncommitment, attacked the proper scientific testimony as immaterial, irrelevant and unrelated to the or innocence of Scopes. There steady stream of mountain leading toward the court seeking advantageous seats for day's developments. Theirs centered chiefly on the practical appearance of William Jennings Bryan in the role of prosecutor. There were reports current Bryan would speak for the defense in attacking the admissibility evidence and if he does, he cross verbal swords with Clarence Darrow, his chief opponent, for first time, during the trial.

All this, however, will come Judge John T. Raulston, has handed down his ruling on the defense motion, asking dismissal of Scopes testimony as a violation of federal and state constitutions.

As stated in yesterday's International News Service dispatches, jurist will hold that the state law constitutional and that Scopes was legally indicted for an alleged violation.

His decision will throw the issue between fundamentalists and evolutionists into a direct test on merits of the case.

The jury or hardly fundamentalists from the Cumberland hills, elevated them farmers, will be barred from the courtroom because it was feared, the speeches of attorneys for both state and defense might influence their verdict.

The hearing of testimony will have a grim fight for his life but may recover, it was said.

With the state's case complete and they have only five witnesses left, the battle of orators will be fought in the courtroom arena. Attorney General Thomas Stewart will be head in a torrent of words. After that either a long drawn out contest between science and the fundamentalists or an overnight collapse in the case.

The decision will rest with Judge Raulston and if he bars the scientists, there will be no defense, but the case appealed at once to the supreme court of Tennessee.

HOBBIES OF THE GREAT AND NEAR GREAT AS TOLD BY NEWS WRITER

Editor's Note—This is the second of a series of intimate sketches of the great and near great in Washington. Their hobbies reveal this galaxy of national politicians as "regular fellows" with just as many human traits as the man on the farm or in the factory.

CHARLES G. DAWES

The Vice-President of the United States is revealed as a hotel proprietor in the "hobby investigation" of national politicians.

His underslung pipe or revolving attack upon Senatorial rules may carry Charles G. Dawes into the printed page of history, but he will always gain the greatest personal satisfaction from his little string of hotels—"flops for the down-and-outers." Two of these institutions are located in Chicago, one in Boston.

The searchlight of publicity has seldom been turned upon this side of the Vice-President's life. It is to him a tragic hobby, for the first of the Dawes hotels was established in Chicago as a lasting memorial of a son drowned in Lake Geneva, Wis., in 1912.

OPERATED AT COST

The hotels are operated at cost for the benefit of the men who are "down and out." Meals and a clean, warm bed are provided, and if a man is penniless, he can earn his food and rest. The Vice-President takes a personal interest in their management. He frequently visits the institutions and always supervises their management. All losses come from the Dawes pocketbook.

On a recent trip to Boston, Dawes spoke at exercises commemorating the Battle of Lexington. He renewed his attack on Senatorial rules, and the speech attracted wide public attention. A little while later he slipped away from admiring friends to visit his Boston hotel. There he gained greater satisfaction from helping the "down-and-outers" than he had derived from hearing the plaudits of a multitude.

His underslung pipe—revolving too, of course, as is the Vice-President's love for grand opera. His own composition, "Melody in A Major," attests the Dawes love for music, and he has been a financial backer of the Chicago Grand Opera Company.

LIKES YOUNGSTERS

Children and the movies are other hobbies of his. The Vice-President is never so contented as when he gathers a crowd of youngsters into his Evanston (Ill.) home to flash a comedy upon a screen hung in a hallway. The Vice-President operates his own private motion-picture machine, and his usual audience includes not only the adopted Dawes children, but his youthful "pals" from the neighborhood.

Books, many written in Spanish and Greek, are another hobby. So is golf, fishing and duck hunting. Dawes likewise loves animals, and Mexico, a wire-haired terrier, is his favorite pet. The Vice-President's inauguration last March 4 was almost spoiled because Mexico got lost when Dawes came to Washington to be sworn in and to "bawl out" the Senate. There may be no connection, of course, but immediately after he received word from Evanston that Mexico was missing, the Vice-President made his first famous attack on the Senate right to its face. Later, however, the terrier was recovered by a neighbor.

Next—William E. Borah.

FAILING EYESIGHT CRIPPLES ENGLISH

London, July 15—England is rapidly becoming a country of short-sighted people, and London a city of eye-glasses and spectacles according to recently published statistics.

These statistics prove that England's sight yearly grows worse and that the country is behind the United States, France, Italy, Spain and most European countries in the good sight scale.

It was found last year that 20,000 children attending London grammar schools needed spectacles, while army recruiting statistics show that 50,000 would-be soldiers were rejected from enlistment during the past twelve months, a high proportion of these rejections being through bad or weak eyesight.

"One in four children born in England today needs spectacles," says one distinguished surgeon ophthalmologist.

"If another world war were to occur in twenty years' time a quarter of the English army would have to go into battle wearing eye-glasses."

ITALIAN GIRL TRIES TO POISON FAMILY

Rome, July 15—A peasant girl, eighteen years of age, living in the south of Italy, near Brindisi, has been arrested for an extraordinary attempt to poison all of her family. These are her father and mother and three brothers.

She had a lover, who is supposed to have instigated the crime; and her plan was to flee with him, after the family were dead, and the lovers had taken possession of everything in the house. Her attempt failed, because the poisoned soup she had prepared was of a suspicious color and no one ate it.

COUNTY CHAIRMAN FOR SCHOLAR CONTEST

Every county in the state of Ohio will have a chairman in charge of the local management of the Martin L. Davey $4,000 scholarship contest for high school students, according to an announcement made today by Mrs. W. W. Millar, of Akron. Mrs. Millar is state chairman of conservation for the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs, which is sponsoring the contest.

This action is taken at the suggestion of Congressman Martin L. Davey, of Kent, the donor of the scholarship fund. Congressman Davey's idea is that in each county the management of the contest be brought into as close contact as possible with the contestants.

Mrs. Millar is now preparing a list of chairmen of all of the 88 counties in Ohio. Each chairman will have full charge of arrangements in her own county, and will be prepared to answer any questions pertaining to the contest. She will also be authorized to receive completed essays from her own county and hold them for inspection by the judges. Mrs. Millar hopes to have names of the county chairmen ready for publication in a few days.

The Martin L. Davey Scholarship Fund sets up the sum of $4,000 to be used at the rate of $1,000 annually for tuition and expenses at any college or university in the state. It will be won by the high school student who writes in five hundred words the best essay on "Conservation." The contest is open to all high school students of Ohio, including public and parochial schools. Students who were graduated in June are eligible, and those who enter freshman classes next September, are eligible as well as other classes. The contest closes January 1, 1926, and the name of the winner will be announced on Arbor Day, 1926. The formal award will be made at the State Convention of Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs in the spring of 1926.

Thought instead of literary merit will count in judging the manuscripts, Mrs. Millar states. The essays must be confined to five hundred words. State phases of conservation may be discussed, but it is preferred that the question be considered from a national viewpoint.

The ideal weather and the shady lawn at the home of Mrs. Harry C. Sohn of Home Avenue combined to make the social gathering of the members of the Home Missionary Society of First M. E. The lawn, cool and inviting, formed the ideal spot for the occasion and here the guests were seated. An informal social time was enjoyed after which the hostess served a delicious picnic supper.

Captain Conrad Westervelt's comedy drama, "Not So Fast," one of the head-line attractions of the Chautauqua this week, presented Tuesday evening, scored a tremendous hit with a large audience.

Rather reminiscent of a roadside sign warning in these modern days of fast highway travel, "Not So Fast" is irresistibly funny—principally due to the hero of the play, "The Blimp," who has his hands full in keeping various other members of the cast from plunging headlong into what proved to be a poor business and matrimonial venture.

Prominent among the talented members of the cast is "Watt" Blake, humorous, droll and whole-some Kentuckian, whose apparent stupidity and homely phrases reminded the audience of Will Rogers, of Zeigfeld Follies fame.

The first morning lecture of the Chautauqua was given Tuesday by Dr. J. G. M'Murty, on "Glimpses of the Orient." He gave an explanation and interpretation of Jewish history, exemplifying how God furthered His plans and purposes through the Israelite peoples.

Dr. M'Murty showed how God had used Egypt, Assyria, Babylon, Persia, Greece and Rome to forward His purposes and bring all things to that "fulness of time" when He could bring His son into the world for its redemption.

He maintained that God established the Bible through the means of higher criticism, not in spite of it, during the period.

He declared that God is now using the great men of the scientific world to settle for all time the question of biological evolution, which has harassed the world since 150 A. D. bringing a complete definition and setting a sure foundation for the world for the next great forward movement, whether that be war, or worse, or completion of the understanding of the brotherhood of man.

"When the definition of biological evolution is written, though it may not be for a hundred years, it will be written in terms of religion and not of science," asserted the speaker in closing.

"My Own Interpretation of the Twenty-third Psalm" was the subject of the afternoon lecture of Dr. M'Murty. "No book in all the world needs interpretation so much as the Bible," he said. "Not because it is so big, but because it is so vast. There is a great difference between bigness and vastness."

The speaker took each phrase of the Psalm and gave the literal meaning of the Psalmist.

NEW MOTOR MAY GIVE FRANCE SUPREMACY

Paris, July 15.—A new airplane motor, which eliminates much of the loss of power hitherto caused by high altitudes, has been invented by a French engineer, Louis Dambianc. Experts predict that the new engine will give France the undisputed first place in world aviation.

Airplane motors lose about one half their power at an altitude of a mile, according to the French military aviation engineers. Louis Dambianc's motor, by means of a new mechanical arrangement, reduces greatly this loss, and consequently increases the speed of the plane. French military authorities are seriously examining the possibility of manufacturing the new motors on a large scale.

ROCK DUST STOPS COAL MINE BLASTS

New York, July 15.—An important step in the prevention of explosions in coal mines has been taken by the formulation, through the co-operative effort of all interested groups, of a comprehensive code for rock dusting coal mines, according to an announcement by the American Engineering Standards Committee.

Catastrophes due to coal mine explosions can be prevented by the simple expedient of spreading rock dust thickly enough to cause an incipient coal dust explosion to die out rather than to travel through the mine atmosphere.

DRUGS, STIMULANTS ADD TO DEATH TOLL

Chicago, July 15.—Average daily use of drugs for every man, woman and child in the United States is 208 grains of alcohol, 6 grains of opium, 6 grains of caffeine, and 1.5 grains of opium. The United States uses 1,250,000,000 pounds of tea and coffee annually, 8,000,000,000 cigars and 75,000,000,000 cigarettes. Two hundred and fifty thousand people die in the United States every year from habitual nervous excitement and a small number are victims of brenown.

FROM OCEAN TO LAKE.

OCEAN-GOING vessels are becoming more and more numerous on the Great Lakes and Ohio cities on the lake shore are becoming, in effect, ocean ports. While the largest ocean freighters cannot reach the lakes, their limits being too great for passage through the Welland Canal, smaller vessels are making the journey and with some interesting results. Cargoes are brought from far away ports and other cargoes are loaded at the home docks for shipment to many distant ports.

These vessels carry slow and heavy freight, leaving lighter shipments, those in which time is an element of importance, to the railroads. Only a short time ago an ocean freighter delivered a cargo from Sweden at Toledo, other cargoes have reached Cleveland and Detroit. Recently a cargo of sugar was delivered at Milwaukee that had been loaded on the vessel at Jersey City, the trip being made by ocean, the St. Lawrence, the Welland Canal and the Great Lakes. It was a heavy shipment, a cargo of slow freight, and was moved by water at a cost below the rates by rail. In moving by water the cost was $6.50 per ton, by rail it would have been $11.30 per ton. It could have been taken there in barges through the canal in New York at a cost of $9.10 per ton. The figures show the chance there is for small ocean-going freight vessels in reaching into the Great Lakes.

Ocean vessels, many flying foreign flags, were numerous on the lakes during the war, when all agencies in transportation were employed. The port of Cleveland had then, many times a dozen in the harbor at one time, loading shipments for France and England. The locks, in the Welland Canal are limited in length and new and longer ones would have to be constructed to handle larger vessels. That expense would not be justified because the canal is small and not suited to the huge carriers. But there is a field for the small vessels in and out of the lakes and that field is being developed. It is an advantage of importance and can be made helpful in a large way to industry about the lakes.

WOMAN IN INDUSTRY.

A SPEAKER at the national convention of the Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs the other day cited the following nine reasons why women fail in business: Too much rouge, lack of confidence in other women, lack of seriousness, lack of vision, lack of initiative, outside interests, lack of tolerance, lack of co-operation, lack of self-control. This is a pretty comprehensive list of reasons for lack of business success, many of them applicable to men as well as to women.

Probably the reason which operates most strongly of all against women's success in business is lack of absorbing interest in their work. A large percentage of women in industry, not nearly all, of course, regard a job chiefly as a means of supporting themselves or earning extra money, until they are married. With them it is a temporary expedient, not the beginning of a life work. Despite modern tendencies, the great majority of girls who work for money give up their positions when they become wives and center their interests in their homes. An employer never feels much assurance that a bright, attractive girl working for him will be a part of his organization for long. On the other hand, when a young man marries, he generally becomes more valuable than ever to his employer because he has a new incentive to do his best.

RAIN.

RAIN, which falls on the just and the unjust alike, also falls at the right time and the wrong time, crop experts will tell you.

Recent rains, by their frequency, will work harm unless a long, dry hot spell follows quickly. The problem of the farmer, absolutely dependant upon the elements for the success or failure of the year's work, is the most complicated of any type of industry.

If there is insufficient rain, his crops wither and are stunted in the fields. If there is too much rain the crops suffer equal chances of being destroyed. If the crops fail, there is a shortage of food and consequent high prices, which affects everyone. If the crops are abundant, prices drop.

If the rain could be turned off and on like the spigot at the kitchen sink, this world would be too easy to live in.

THE HOUSE BEAUTIFUL

Sometimes the wise men come and stand about
And see me spending money on my place,
Some new expense to add a touch of grace,
And then they say: "You'll never get it out!"
With talk of annual interest they flout
My love of trees and shrubbery to my face,
Talk of my home as though it were a case
For bankers and their rules in every doubt.
But I shall take my six per cent in blooms,

Roses and peonies and living trees,
I hold the beauty of these little rooms
Above the profit which the banker sees.

This is my home, too dear and sweet
A cause
For business wisdom and its code of laws.

Orange-Peach Sherbet: Soak two teaspoons of granulated gelatin in two tablespoons of cold water. Bring two cups of boiling water and two cups of sliced peaches to the boiling point, and allow to boil for eight minutes. Now rub through a coarse strainer, again bring to the boiling point, add the softened gelatin and stir till the gelatin dissolves. Sweeten with two and one half cups of granulated sugar and let cool. When chilled, add one third cup of strained lemon juice and one and one half cups of strained orange juice. Freeze in three parts of ice to one part of salt, filling the freezer can only two thirds full to allow for expansion as the mixture freezes. When frozen, repack in four parts of ice to one part of salt and let stand at least an hour to "ripen." Ice cream is usually served on a plate, but water ices and sherbets are generally served in glasses.

Apricot Sherbet: Soak two teaspoons of granulated gelatin in two tablespoons of cold water for five minutes. Boil two cups of sugar with three cups of water and the grated rind of one half lemon for five minutes, then add to this mixture the softened gelatin and remove from range; stir till the gelatin is dissolved, cool, chill, and add one half cup of lemon juice and one cup of apricot pulp which you have pressed through a wide-meshed sieve. Freeze as above directed.

Mint Sherbet: Soak overnight one tablespoon of bruised mint leaves mixed with three quarters of a cup of powdered sugar, the juice of two lemons and four seedless oranges, and one fourth cup of canned pineapple juice. In the morning strain the mixture and add one quart bottle of cold gingerale and one fourth cup of minced maraschino cherries (these may be left out if thought too expensive.) Freeze this sherbet in equal parts of cracked ice and rock salt. If you wish it especially smooth, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs using the last few minutes of freezing. Repack for an hour as above directed.

LEMON JUICE WHITENS SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchar'd White, which will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quart-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier. Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

Today's Talks

THE FREE MIND

When I look at a flower I like to think that my thought melts right into its color, its delicacy, its perfume. And today when I sat under a great group of trees and looked above where the reaching branches held their leaved umbrellas above my head, I felt a part of their shelter of their green freshness and I was touched in my heart by their sympathetic silence.

When I walk over the soft grass I am again reminded of the warmth of nature toward me as a moving being with intelligence to think things out and with a silent understanding, that I am as much a part of the grass, the flowers, the trees, the birds, and in fact all natural beauty, as I am a part of the Mind that put me here.

It all suggests freedom—the state to which we were all born in the first place. And in a free state all people think freely. That is why a child's thoughts and expressions are so original and interesting, as well as true.

In traveling about I have learned that the people of the western part of the United States and in the scattered settlements of Canada, think so much more freely and freshly than those of the east where convention and tradition and family will enter to restrict and throttle honest expression.

I shall never forget when I passed through the Canadian Rockies and when I spent several weeks in the heart of the American Rockies in Colorado. Somehow as I viewed that grandeur I had no words. Expression was all swallowed up in wonder, admiration, in a deepened love for this opportunity to free my mind into vastness and let it climb the mountains.

We are quite often talkative in the midst of small discussion, but when great, stupendous thoughts are let out into the open, we become strangely silent. It is at such times, however, that we become most creative in our own mind.

The free mind gifts, selects, discards and saves. It places a premium upon the honest truth and is thrilled at its reception. It is well to remember that only as we are free, do we grow, do we create, do we build.

James Pilney has been selected as enforcement officer at Dillonvale. Other raiders are expected to be picked within a few days by other local communities intent on enforcing the dry laws.

MODISH MITZI—Tastes Differ—So Do Parasols

By JAY V. JAY

Tastes differ and Bill does not care much for this parasol of bright flower patterned chintz. It's very smart for summer at the beach or in the country. Bill doesn't care for it, though—Mitzi isn't carrying it.

Bill doesn't think much of this one either. Of course it is made of tan silk with a checked border of tan and red and a handle that matches the border. But it's only Polly that is sheltered after all.

For a moment Bill rather fancies this one. It is made of rose colored moire with shirred edges of the fabric. He thinks it decidedly attractive, but his enthusiasm wanes when he discovers that it shelters Adelaide.

At last this critical young man is suited. This parasol is Japanese in effect—made of chintz—and his enthusiasm for it is so great that he will carry it (over Mitzi) all the rest of the afternoon!

A SHOPPING GUIDE FOR THE BARGAIN HUNTER

"NOT POSSIBLE TO CLASSIFY"

BY MACK SAUER

Well, we read that a convention of dentists was held in Columbus recently. The dentists opened the convention by filling the holes in the Scioto Country Club with a few golf balls.

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

Where a sign says 9 to 3
The cruel dentist stands;
A mighty heartless man is he
With forceps in his hands;
He saws and hammers on your jaw
Until a tooth he lands.

It would have been quite appropriate to have had the meeting opened with a song entitled "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown" by a fellow with one gold tooth. Certainly he saw stars when the crown was put on.

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

Week in, week out, from 9 to 3
You can hear his buzzer go;
You can see him swing his heavy sledge
Into treasured meat--Oh, Bo!
Like a farmer chopping a cord of wood
When the evening sun is low.

It doesn't take a dentist long at grinding in your mouth until the sparks begin to fly "like chaff from a threshing floor." He'd rather cut the top off a wisdom tooth than the top off a lawn with a lawnmower.

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

And children coming home from school
Go sailing by his door;
They hate to see his buzzer wheel
And hear the patients roar
And watch the hollow molars fly
About them by the score.

The dentist sticks you in a chair, bolts your head down, props your mouth open with his hands, grinds off a couple of teeth, and then tells you to let him know when it hurts. When he drops from exhaustion, he tells you to come back next Thursday.

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

Toiling, rejoicing, sorrowing,
Grinding his way he goes;
Each morning opens up a mouth,
Each evening lets it close;
His patient goes home then to rest
But gets no night's repose.

Now I'm even with that dentist that hurt me so. But they're all good fellows and we hope they have many more happy birthdays. And that they read The Gazette classified ads.

MRS. JAMES HARRIS
Correspondent
TEL. 91-R

At the Tabernacle meetings, corner Harrison and New Berry Sts., Washington C. H., God is wonderfully blessing all who come to him by faith. For the Salvation of soul and healing of the body. At the close of the service last Tuesday night, souls on the outside got under conviction came forward bowed at the altar and were saved. Real miracles are being performed. A crippled young man made to walk and one healed instantaneously of blood poisoning. Many were healed on Sunday afternoon. These meetings are held annually. Folks from every walk of life attend these meetings. Come and bring your sick, hear a full gospel preached by able ministers. The singing is wonderful.

Have you an auto? If so will you give joy Sunday to some ill or aged person by taking them to Sunday School and church? Signed, Executive Board of Go to Sunday School and Go to Church Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Seales, of Springfield, in company with Mrs. Laura McGee, were guests Tuesday of relatives here. Mrs. McGee will leave Wednesday for Winston Salem,

North Carolina, where she will make her future home.

Mr. Wesley Piptins and nephew, Mr. Victory Johnson, of Yellow Springs, were in attendance at the funeral service of Mr. Simms, Tuesday.

The funeral service for Mr. Charles Simms at the Third Baptist Church Tuesday afternoon was one of the largest gatherings of its kind in the history of this place. Many persons were in attendance from Cincinnati, Columbus, Pliska, Springfield, Dayton, and could be counted by the hundreds from nearby places. The body lay in state from 10 a. m. till the service hour in the afternoon, where a continued line of persons was kept going. The funeral service was an impressive one. The sermon was preached by his pastor, the Rev. A. M. Howe, assisted by other city ministers, together with remarks by City Manager S. O. Hale. Resolutions from fraternal organizations of which he was a member, and the many choice selections of music by the church choir, and the American Legion Military Band of Springfield, which accompanied the funeral cortege to Cherry Grove Cemetery and the wonderful collection of floral tributes bespeak to the sorrowing family and relatives the high regard in which Mr. Simms was held.

The third quarterly conference of the C. M. E. Mission, East Main Street, will be held Wednesday July 15. Rev. P. E. Harres will preach.

BRINGING UP FATHER

MICHAEL'S MARRIAGE

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER 95.

"That's the very essence of married life, I suppose. One minute supreme happiness, the next minute, wretchedness. One minute she tells me I've given her the only happiness she has ever known, the next minute she is howling because of my cruelty." Thus Michael mused over the evening's scene as he pressed his head into his pillow, seeking sleep.

His thoughts had the same trend the following morning as he breakfasted across from a smiling, happy Lilah.

When he came home that afternoon there was a shiny new coupe in the driveway.

"Did you see it?" Lilah cried, running to him when he entered. He nodded, smiling at her enthusiasm.

"It's marvelous!" she exclaimed, jumping up and down on her toes, like a little girl in ecstasy. "You seem to have wrapped it up and brought it with you. I didn't know you could buy them on such short notice. But I suppose you can at that. The corner drug stores will be carrying them soon."

She eyed him boorishly.

"Now that I've got one, I suppose I'll have to listen to fourteen million bright, very bright lines and jokes about flivvers."

"Did you take any lessons in driving?" he asked, ignoring her remarks.

"The salesman took me out for a drive, and made me do the driving, and I got the hang of it right away. It was a little funny at first, driving a car without a gear shift. Why, a baby could drive one of those things."

"Well, remember that there's a back wall in the garage that I would like to keep in its present position, and don't block the driveway every day as you did today."

"And I suppose that I'll have to listen to a daily lecture about the darn things, too."

"Not from me. You'll have trouble enough."

That very evening he had to put it in the garage for her. "I'm so tired, Michael. I wish you'd drive the car in for me. Will you dear?" He stalked out, eying her.

An hour later, while Lilah, yawning, was listening without interest to an account of a football game Michael was reading, Lonnie Copper burst in upon them.

Michael leaped upon him hungrily. "Where have you been keeping yourself, you old bum?" Lilah was less enthusiastic.

"I haven't seen you two anywhere lately, and I was afraid something had happened." Lonnie exclaimed, taking the most comfortable chair for himself. "When are you two going to come out of your retreat? Afraid?"

"Oh, we haven't been out much lately. Lilah's mother and father have been here while their own house was being decorated. But what's the news?"

"You two are still the news. Everybody's still talking about that $25,000 bribe your mother gave Lilah to marry you."

Michael laughed, but Lilah's expression scarcely changed. Michael was annoyed. What was the matter with her.

"Say, Mike," Lonnie exclaimed. "How'd you like to go hunting with us this year?"

"You mean the same trip you took last year?"

The response was a nod.

"Great idea!" He suddenly paused and turned to Lilah expectantly.
